

NYC Scholar-Athlete Summit: Science and Health Professions

Looking for Athletes with SWAG...

Please join us for an engaging day of group discussions and lectures about how you or your students who identify as “Scholar-athletes With Academic Goals” (SWAG) can pursue careers as scientists or health care professionals.

Saturday, June 22, 2019

8:30 am Registration and Breakfast | 9:30 am - 3 pm Program. Lunch will be served.

The Hess Center for Science and Medicine at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai
1470 Madison Avenue, New York, NY (at 102nd Street)

Featuring keynote address by:

Hannah Valentine, MD, MRCP

Chief Officer for Scientific Workforce
Diversity
National Institutes
of Health (NIH)

Who should attend?

- Students
- Parents
- Academic advisors
- Athletic and health administrators
- Coaches
- Educators

Register at

icahn.mssm.edu/scholarathletesummit

by Friday, May 31 for this FREE event.

Space is limited.

#NYCSWAGSummit

Hosted by the Icahn School of Medicine’s Diversity in Biomedical Research Council and the Mount Sinai Health System’s Office for Diversity and Inclusion.

Thank you to all the supporters of this important initiative.

