Working Papers In Ethics and Moral Psychology

UPCOMING EVENTS:

12/12/2019: Ross Colebrook (Baruch College)
3/12/2020: Stephen Grimm (Fordham University)
4/23/2020: Claudia Passos-Ferreira (NYU)
5/21/2020: L. Syd M. Johnson (SUNY Upstate Medical University)

PAST EVENTS:

10/3/2019: Mark Sheehan (Oxford University)
11/14/2019: Marianna Bergamaschi Ganapini (Union College)

Ross Colebrook is an adjunct assistant professor at Baruch College (CUNY), working on issues at the intersection of metaethics and moral psychology. He completed his PhD in 2018 at the CUNY Graduate Center. His recent work concerns whether ordinary people are moral realists, and the irrational psychological factors that cause them to adopt metaethical attitudes.

NEXT EVENT:

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 12, 2019, 5:30-7:00PM
ANNENBERG 12-12

JOIN THE WORKING PAPERS MAILING LIST AND RSVP TO:
nada.gligorov@mssm.edu

Working Papers in Ethics and Moral Psychology is a speaker series conducted under the auspices of the Icahn School of Medicine Bioethics Program. It is conceived as a working group where speakers are invited to present well-developed, as yet unpublished work. The focus of the group will be interdisciplinary, with a primary focus on topics in ethics, bioethics, neuroethics, and moral psychology.