

Ian Dwinell, MD, MBA

Resident (PGY4), Surgery
Mount Sinai South Nassau

Service to patients and/or families/Service to their peers: “He goes above and beyond to ensure that each individual under his care feels heard, supported, and well-informed throughout their medical journey. He takes the time to thoroughly explain procedures, alleviating any anxieties and instilling trust in his patients. Ian's compassionate approach fosters a sense of comfort, making a significant difference in the overall patient experience.” “I have not met a resident who is so willing to sit down and help out a junior or medical student. He spearheads the medical student education during their rotations with us and I am always in awe of his patience and demeanor. Ian truly inspires me to become a better teacher and make it a priority to build our peers around us. He has a particular way of making anyone feel comfortable, supported and respected regardless of their training level.” “Ian is a fierce advocate for fellow residents and his efforts have helped shape our program for the better. He regularly communicates our best interests to leadership.”

Olivia Grubman, MD, MPH

Fellow (PGY7), Maternal Fetal Medicine
Mount Sinai Morningside and Mount Sinai West

Service to their peers: “As senior fellow she always ensures the wellness of her junior co-fellows. She is extremely organized and always available for questions/guidance for the junior fellows. There have been countless examples where other fellows have been out sick or have felt overworked and she has stepped up and without question covered for her co-fellows. She brings so much morale to the program and constantly puts her co-workers above the needs of herself. We are extremely lucky to have her as a senior fellow.”
